What's all the racket about? PICKLEBALL

Special points of interest:

One of the latest fitness activities is alive and well at Ann's Choice. Pickleball was invented by three fathers in Washington State in 1965 who were sick and tired of hearing their kids complain that they were bored. So they created a mashup of Ping-Pong, tennis and badminton to keep them busy and it worked. Today there are 4.8 million "picklers" in the United States. All you need to play is a paddle, a ball and three friends. A box by the Pickleball court holds all the supplies you will need.

How to talk like a Pickler:

FLAPJACK—For each serve and return of serve, players must allow the ball to bounce before they hit it. Those bouncing starters are called flapjacks.

DILLBALL—An incoming ball that has bounced once and is available for you to thwack.

THE KITCHEN—a 7-foot zone on either side of the net, where you are forbidden to hit the ball unless it has bounced first. This rule prevents smashes from the kitchen, which are unfun and dangerous at close quarters.

DINK SHOT—An annoying shot in which the ball is plinked from your kitchen into your opponents' with little hope of return.

OPA—After two bounce-hit sequences, players may shout "OPA!" to signify that from now on it's OK to hit a ball out of the air (unless you are standing in the kitchen, in which case you need to review the pickleball rules.)

PICKLED—If you fail to score any points in a game, you've been pickled. But that will remind you: It's time for cocktail hour with your friends.
